

Guess the Fib/Two Truths and a Lie

Divide the large group into smaller groups of five or six members each (our mentoring groups). Ask each person to tell, with conviction, two truths and a lie about _____ (e.g., How they spent their summer vacation, what they did over the holidays, what they do for fun, or any other topic of their choice). Examples in response to What I did over the summer might be:

- I cooked dinner for my family every night during the month of July. (lie)
- I attended my son's high school graduation where he was selected as class salutatorian. (truth)
- I attended the Colorado Outward Bound program for three weeks and climbed a 13,000-foot mountain. (truth)

Other members of the group have to guess which are the truths and which is the lie.

With the large group, conduct a "Lie Off. Have each of the smaller groups select the most interesting, convincing person to share his or her three items.

Guess the Fib/Two Truths and a Lie

Divide the large group into smaller groups of five or six members each (our mentoring groups). Ask each person to tell, with conviction, two truths and a lie about _____ (e.g., How they spent their summer vacation, what they did over the holidays, what they do for fun, or any other topic of their choice). Examples in response to What I did over the summer might be:

- I cooked dinner for my family every night during the month of July. (lie)
- I attended my son's high school graduation where he was selected as class salutatorian. (truth)
- I attended the Colorado Outward Bound program for three weeks and climbed a 13,000-foot mountain. (truth)

Other members of the group have to guess which are the truths and which is the lie.

With the large group, conduct a "Lie Off. Have each of the smaller groups select the most interesting, convincing person to share his or her three items.

Guess the Fib/Two Truths and a Lie

Divide the large group into smaller groups of five or six members each (our mentoring groups). Ask each person to tell, with conviction, two truths and a lie about _____ (e.g., How they spent their summer vacation, what they did over the holidays, what they do for fun, or any other topic of their choice). Examples in response to What I did over the summer might be:

- I cooked dinner for my family every night during the month of July. (lie)
- I attended my son's high school graduation where he was selected as class salutatorian. (truth)
- I attended the Colorado Outward Bound program for three weeks and climbed a 13,000-foot mountain. (truth)

Other members of the group have to guess which are the truths and which is the lie.

With the large group, conduct a "Lie Off. Have each of the smaller groups select the most interesting, convincing person to share his or her three items.

Guess the Fib/Two Truths and a Lie

Divide the large group into smaller groups of five or six members each (our mentoring groups). Ask each person to tell, with conviction, two truths and a lie about _____ (e.g., How they spent their summer vacation, what they did over the holidays, what they do for fun, or any other topic of their choice). Examples in response to What I did over the summer might be:

- I cooked dinner for my family every night during the month of July. (lie)
- I attended my son's high school graduation where he was selected as class salutatorian. (truth)
- I attended the Colorado Outward Bound program for three weeks and climbed a 13,000-foot mountain. (truth)

Other members of the group have to guess which are the truths and which is the lie.

With the large group, conduct a "Lie Off. Have each of the smaller groups select the most interesting, convincing person to share his or her three items.